EXIT INTERVIEW

POLICY

Obtaining feedback from departing employees about the Stark County Board of Developmental Disabilities and its employment practices is viewed as a valuable process. The feedback may affirm and identify work practices as strengths and can provide a perspective on the Board's performance and employee satisfaction. Also, work practices may be identified which may require corrective measures for the future.

A departing employee is a source of important information to the organization in creating an awareness of the functional/dysfunctional policies and practices in the organization. A departing employee will tend to be less hesitant to air his/her views and be more candid about his/her assessment of the organization and its work environment

Exit interviews are structured and the Human Resources Department uses a standardized form to gather information so comparisons can be made.
